‘Mystique residence’ designed by ASRO Arcade is an exquisitely crafted house that aims to find equilibrium between luxury and earthiness. The extraordinary residence follows a unique concept of modern classicism for clients who wanted something visually stunning while also having their own identity. The overarching theme was that of modern classic elements, hence Team ASRO had used stone and pop-moulding with rose glass, as it is extremely trendy whilst being aesthetically pleasing. Additionally, the client also called for a distinctive style that was in vogue; as a consequence, this residence became a compendium of remarkable design with distinct elements put together.

Facade designs keep getting better with new updates introduced by computer software, immersive reality, and smart buildings. The facade of this residence allows the building to project the architects' creative intent and sets the ideal design tone. To give the building an artistic finish, a custom perforated matrix of Laminam was used with various colour options. A full-body Italian porcelain slab that is exclusively large in size with minimum thickness has been used for the first-floor box finish. Natural stone was used for cladding from the first to the top floor and on the right-hand side. MS C-section for the main gate coupled with concrete finish HPL was also integrated.

Upon entering the house, quirky stone sculptures on the staircase form a gorgeous first impression. Immediately after the staircase, an idol of Lord Ganesha with a gorgeous mirrored background on a magnificent high-table in the foyer, greets the visitors in the foyer.

The first living room located on the ground floor has a neutral colour palette with focus on browns, blacks, and creams. Plush inviting sofa made of leather, decorated with throw pillows of multiple sizes & throw blankets makes it a bespoke area for kicking back and relaxing. Wooden planks consist of the ceiling and a modern, pop-art style chandelier and cove lighting illuminates the room. Concrete and marble wall panelling, in addition to a tropical-inspired rug that nods to the colour palette of the room enhances the aura of the area. Accessories in the form of golden vases, candle holders, and a tiny new-age globe can be seen in niches and on the coffee table. The finishing touch for the room has to be the floor-to-ceiling glass doors that lead to a balcony outside.

Crossing over to the bedroom, a subtle colour palette of greys with wooden accents has been used. A mounted TV across the bed makes the room extremely comfortable. Cove lighting and marble floors ensure that the feeling of opulence never goes away.

Two words can be used to describe the kitchen - sleek and stylish. Marble cabinets, glass display cases, and white drawers give the kitchen user plenty of storage space. Again, the latest appliances like the refrigerator and microwave ovens have been installed to ensure ease of use.

The dining area accompanies the kitchen. A long and elegant dining table made of marble placed along a cracked and geometric double-height wall makes the area look more open. A skylight with a chandelier can be witnessed when one looks directly upwards from the dining table.

The second floor consists of bedrooms. The first bedroom has brown as the dominant colour, with marble walls and a wooden floor along with side tables and table lamps make the room look very chic. A pop of colour in slight yellow and light grey can be seen in the rug. The crowning glory of the room is the bed, with a tufted headboard and a footboard to make the room look bigger than it already is. Touches of colour in navy blue are present in terms of the bedspread and the pillows.

The other bedroom on the second floor has a pre-French revolution vintage vibe to it that makes it look mind-blowing. A colour palette of creams and sandy browns are present in the room, with a mounted TV opposite the bed, and an ornate table in front of the bed to give it another dimension to the room. Lastly, a sleigh-shaped bed frame adds that extra oomph to the bedroom.

The key design requirements of this Gurugram residence were to offer the space, luxury, and ambience of a private residence, and the functionality, convenience, and comfort of a modern apartment. ASRO Arcade painstakingly designed the house with the utmost care and paid extreme attention to details. 📸
